UP AT DEWEY, OKLA. la., June 17.—The dates for the Sixth Annual Roundup here have been so arranged this year that all who attend can reach their homes by Sunday morning after the prizes are awarded. The events are to begin July 3 and extend through to Saturday night. Joe A. Bartles, with who the final arrangements for ropers and riders and their rewards are always left, has announced an increase of purses hung up, to $2200. Col. Bartles always insists on paying the boys who win, in new gold money, and many visitors remained las: year just to see the cow-peelers and

The contests in the roping and riding arena last through the afternoon, and at right a Carnival company will furnish entertainment in the streets of Dewey.

WANAMAKER PARTY AT TISHOMINGO

Tishomingo, Ok., June 16.-On the 1818-Charles Francis Gounod, the campus of Chickasaw capitol a large crowd of full and mixed blood Chickasaw Indians gathered to pay alleg iance to the American flag.

In a fitting ceremony the Chickasaw fullbloods raised the United States flag and the tribe swore allegiance to it in the presence of a large assembly. Each representative signed a parchment affirming his faith in the Declaration of Independence.

Phonographic speeches of Mr. Ab-Wilson were well received.

When Secretary Lane said, "Most of the big game in your country and mine-the Western country-such as buffalo, elk and antelope, has gone. There are just a few wolves left. When I have been hunting I have made a fire which protected me against the wolves at night, and there was always some man in the party who would watch so he could throw a fire-brand out to scare them off. I have been chosen by the Big Chief in the White House to sit up and watch to keep the wolves as far away from you as I can." The Indians cheered

The climax was reached when President Wilson addressed them as "brothers," instead of the long established custom of calling himself their big white chief.

J. George Wright, Commissioner of the Five Civilized Tribes, made a brief statement. Several fullblood Chickasaws spoke in their native tongue, among them Forbes Cravat. After speaking Chickasaw he spoke the same in English. Ex-Representative Joe Brown spoke and Rube Anderson

The ceremony had a very impressive influence on the fullblood.

If you look closely you will see side ditches which have grown up with bushes and weeds in many cases, and which are so far from the traveled part of the road that the rain water does not drain into them. That part of the roadway where the wagons travel is called the traveled way. To prevent water from standing on the traveled way the road should be raiced in the center and should slope gently into broad shallow ditches. It is then said to have a crown. If it is 10 feet from the center face at the side ditch should be at least 10 inches lower than it is at the center where the horses travel. The road then has a 10-inch crown. In the next trip the drag should be the last trip over the road the drag may work close to the center itself. Small ridges of earth will be thrown in the horse track and smeared by the round side of the log smoothly over the road. The smearing of the earth by the drag is called "puddling" and it tends to make the surface of the road smooth and water-tight after the sun comes out. The road is always dragged after it has rained and not when it is dry. A good, strong pair of horses with a well-built drag can drag about 3 or 4 miles of road in a day, and it is the best way to

Revival at Second Baptist Church

The revival meeting at the Second Baptist church has begun and those who are attending have learned that there is one preacher by the name of William Guy.

The 10 o'clock service Monday morning was an excellent one. The seven thoughts in the twenty-third Psalm furnished the theme of a very able discourse, and at the evening ser vice at 8:15 he preached on the very appropriate subject: "Mind Your Own Business." The audience of at least 300 fully realized that it was instructed as well as entertained. The service will continue until further notice, the morning hour being 10 oclock and the evening service at 8:15.

May Restore 2c Rate in Oklahoma

The decision of Judge Hughes in the United States Supreme Court Monday in upholding the Missouri and Arkansas 2-cent pasenger rates opens the way for Oklahoma to immediately ask for a dissolution of the temporary injunction granted by Judge Hook, restraining the enforcement of the 2-cent rate, according to state officials, who look upon the decision in the Missouri case as a complete victory for Oklahoma. Just what steps will be taken could not be learn ed Monday night as Attorney General West, the only one in position to speak with authority on that subject, was out of the city. The probable pro cedure, it is stated, will be to ask the United States district judge in the court where the case now is pending to dissolve the injunction on the ground that the issues involved are identical to those in the Missouri case and which under the decision of Judge Hughes are of no force and effect. If this request is denied in the district court it immediately can be transferred to the circuit court of appeals and if necessary can be taken from that court direct to the United States supreme court .- Oklahoman.

and Feel the Picture of Real Realth.

The purpose of the kidneys being to filter the blood the question of treatbe considered carefully. Instead of drugs and alleged kidney stimulants the better plan is to purify the blood with an antidotal effect such as you every child born is reported by the get from S. S. S.

It should be remembered that the kidneys are made up of a fine net work of blood vessels, and it is to stimulate the functional activity of kidney tissue through this capillary net work that S. S. S. shows one of its most remarkable effects.

The medicinal value of the components of S. S. S. is relatively just as vital to healthy kidney action as the nutriment obtained from grain, meat, fats, sugars, or any other part of our daily food is to the natural reconstructive requirements of the tissues. And there is one component of S. S. S. which serves the active purpose of stimulating the cellular tissues of the kidneys to a healthy and judicious selection of its own essential nutriment. Thus, in cases of rheu matism, cystitis, chronic sore throat, huskiness of voice, bronchitis, asthma, and the myriad of other reflex indications of weak kidney action, first purify your blood with S. S. S. so it will enable the tissues to rebuild their cellular strength and regain their normal health.

S. S. S. is prepared by The Swif Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta Ga., and if you have any deep-seated or obstinate blood trouble, write to their Medical Dept. for free advice. It will be worth your while to do so. You will find S. S. S. on sale at a drug stores.

Public Health Department

To be known as "the cleanest town in Oklahoma" is a distinction well worth the effort necessary to win the honor. Oklahoma cities and towns are to have an opportunity to contest for prizes offered by Holland's Magazine for the cleanest town of not less than deaths; scarlet fever was third with 5,000 population and not more than 214 cases and 2 deaths. 12,500, to be known as Class D: for the cleanest town of 2,500 and not more than 5,000 population, to be known as Class E. The prizes are public drinking fountains.

Similar contests have been conducted in Texas. The result of such rivalry for sanitary attainment there was observed by me last year when I was designated by Holland's to decide a "tie" between two towns attaining the same score. Numerous inquiries regarding public health matters are received daily by the State Commissioner of Health. As many of these questions are similar, I will from time to time answer in this department of the Ada News, believing that such matters are of concern to the general public. The State Health Department invites correspondence on any subject within its jurisdiction. All letters are promp.ly answered.

That the State of Oklahoma keeps a record of every birth and death, and that each such record is complete as to the essential features that ing supposed kidney weakness should make it valuable from a historical standpoint, is not generally understood. Here the official record is classified, indexed and filed in a manner that it can be easily be found should there be a request for the information. It serves as a pedigree for the child. It establishes a legal standing for the infant that might some day have its date of birth or parentage questioned. For years men have appreciated the importance of registering their finer live stock, but only in recen't years have we awakened to the value of a record pertaining to humans.

The number of deaths reported to the State Health Department for the month of March, 1913, was 928. Of this number 205 were infants under one year of age, and 279, or 30 per cent of the total number, were under five years of age. During this same month there were 116 deaths reported from infectious diseases, against 189 for the same month in 1912. This does not include tuberculosis.

(Copyright, 1913, by A. C. McClary & Co.)

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I-Gloria Kerr, a motheriess girl who has spent most of her life at chool, arrives at her father's home in elmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II-Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform

CHAPTER III—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER IV—Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Gilberts. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe. CHAPTER V-Gloria twits Wright on his failure to keep an engagement to meet her in Paris. He explains that the death of his mother prevented his going CHAPTER VI-The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the refurnishing of the Kerr home.

CHAPTER VII—One society bud who refused to meet Gloria is forced to do so when her father is made to feel Kerr's decide to buy Kerr's paper and ask the editor to meet them at Gilbert's office. CHAPTER XII—Wright in his desire to keep from Gloria knowledge of her fath-er's position, avoids her during the fight. Gloria is piqued.

CHAPTER XIII-Calling at Gilbert's office to solicit a donation Gloria meets Wright. He proposes and is accepted while waiting to be called into the conference.

CHAPTER XIV-Wright refuses to sell his paper and declares he will fight to a finish.

"In dollars and cents, perhaps," admitted Wright, 'but there are some things that have a greater value than mere money; peace of mind, for instance, and the deserved respect of the community, and honor. I can't sell out the people who are depending on me, the people of Belmont.'

The men across the table looked at him as if they thought him crazy. They knew he had foolish ideas, but they had not dreamed he would let such an opportunity slip through his fingers. He was the owner of a newspaper that was losing money every day, and they had as much as asked him to name his own figure for his property. They could not understand how honor was part of the transaction in the sale of a newspaper, even in the last days of a strong fight against the organization. What should he care about the respect of the community when he had money enough to take him out of that community and keep him comfortable until he was ready to get another paper somewhere else to exploit his insane ideas of civic righteousness?

"You are just a little hasty in your judgment, Mr. Wright," Judge Gilbert said, when he saw that the publisher seemed to regard his answer as final.

"Licked! Licked! I've Just Begun to Fight."

"If you'll consider the matter carefully I-think it'll appear to you in this light: Here's a paper that isn't making expenses. A good offer is made you which if you are wise enough to accept will permit you to leave Belmont far richer than when you came. There are other lances to be broken elsewhere. Why tilt here against a stone wall?"

"If it were a stone wall there'd have been no offer." Wright was shrewd enough to know that they must be in desperate straits.

"See here, young man," Kerr blazed, "you won't be able to make a go of it.

If you den't sell now Ph see to it that some day the sheriff will."

This direct threat was more than he could bear. Rising from his chair and leaning across the table the publisher shook his fist in Kerr's face and told him just what he thought of the situation. Remembering who was on the other side of the door he was facing, he did not raise his voice, but into his low tones he put all the fire of his honest indignation.

"You may put me down and out, as you boast you can, but you can't buy me out. You've scared advertisers so they're afraid to use my paper, you've had me sued for libel, you've raised my taxes, you've made the railroads hold up my white paper, you've annoyed me in a thousand petty ways, but I'm getting out a paper every day, and I'm telling the truth. That's what hurts," he hurled across the table. "I'm telling the truth. You can't stand it."

"God knows Belmont needs somebody to tell the truth! If you took my paper today, who'd stand between the people of Belmont and the wolves? The town's being robbed blind. I'm telling about it, and I believe there are enough honest people to see me through and set the town right. But they need a leader—a newspaper—and won't sell 'em out.

"For what's coming," he announced sternly, "hold yourself responsible, not me. You forced me to come out with the bald truth of the matter. Maybe you know and maybe you don't know that you of all men are the one I would least care to hold up for the public to see. Today-for the first time-I printed my name at the head of my editorial page. I want people to know that back of the paper's a man-a man that won't sell out, and back of the man I'm going to have the people. Do you hear? Belmont's going to be a clean city."

He leaned across the table and looked the boss straight in the eye, emphasizing his last words by bringing his fist down on the table with each telling point he drove home. It was a duel between him and Kerr; the others merely looked on. Never in all the days of his political activity had a man talked in this fashion to David Kerr. The audacity and fearlessness of the young man aroused his admiration. He did not let that feeling interfere, however, with his intention to destroy him utterly. The Belmont News must be muzzled, and the boss could not permit a matter of sentiment to outweigh a political neces-

"You'd better go slow, young man," cautioned Kerr. "I ain't played my hand, you know. You've put up a good fight; that's why I'm giving you good chance to git out without admitting you've been licked."

"Licked! Licked!" echoed Wright with fine disdain. "I've just begun to fight. You're nearer a worse defeat at this minute than you ever were going to keep you down if I have anything to do with it. Don't insult me by trying to buy my paper. I've the dearest reason in the world for wantmg money and for leaving Belmontbut if I go without a dollar I can still hold up my head and look every man in the eye."

Kerr now looked at him without visible show of anger, in that cold, calculating manner he had taught every one to fear.

'Then you won't sell?" he said. "No," shouted Wright, beside himself with indignation at the offer; "I'll see you in hell first." What further might have been said there is no telling. The words were scarcely out of Wright's mouth when he saw the door opposite him open and Gloria appear. Instantly he relaxed from his tense, strained manner, and, noting his change, the other the doorway hesitatingly, recognizing that she was interrupting a business

"I beg your pardon," she said, but from the window I saw Mrs. Hayes on the street, and I thought I'd go to her." "I'll join you," Wright announced. He left his place at the table and walked over to where Gloria was standing. "I suppose the meeting is over," ventured Gilbert. "It is, as far as I'm concerned," said the newspaper man. Then, looking at Kerr, he added, "I think I've made my position perfectly clear."

CHAPTER XV.

Gloria's announced intention of rejoining Mrs. Hayes was not the only motive that had brought her into the library. The angry hum of voices had been borne to her even through the closed door, and with a woman's impatience and curiosity she was anxious to know what was going on. Greater than all else, however, was her desire to be with Wright. She thought that by appearing she could bring matters to a conclusion and carry off with her the man she loved. Now that she was in the library and Wright had said that he was ready to go whenever she was, David Kerr's daughter forgot about her desire to go to Mrs. Hayes. Dr. Hayes and his wife were returning to Judge Gilbert's office when Gloria had seen them, and soon Williams ushered them into the library. The presence of the two women prevented all open discussion of political matters. Even had it not been for Miss Kerr and Mrs. Hayes there could have been no controversy, because after Wright had made his position clear he would not talk further about it. Now he was merely waiting for Gloria. "I thought you said you wouldn't be
